GUEST SPEAKER

A/Prof. Phil Zylstra came into bushfire research from a background in fire management and remote area firefighting.

His work since that time has seen him develop the first and only peer-reviewed fire behaviour model for most Australian forests, as well as the first model globally to calculate the direct effects of fire on flora, fauna and soils.

In his Adjunct role with Curtin University, he has turned his focus toward understanding the ways that our interaction with forests affects fire risk. Using new approaches to analyse fire histories alongside state-of-the-art modelling, Phil has pioneered an approach of “ecological cooperation” that reconciles deep knowledge from First Nations with forest ecology and a complex understanding of fire behaviour to provide critically-needed guidance in fire management.
